

How Townships and Ranges are numbered in Wisconsin

Wisconsin's Point of Beginning is at the intersection of the Illinois state line with the county line between Grant and Lafayette counties. The line running north along those county lines is an extension of the Fourth Principal Meridian, which comes up through Illinois. Range lines are also spaced six miles apart, running both to the east and west of the Fourth Principal Meridian.

